Data#3 Strengthens its Business in Western Australia

June, 10, 2010, Perth, Australia: Data#3 Limited [ASX: DTL], a national technology company today announced that due to significant customer demand, the company is to grow its Western Australian operation.

Data#3's Western Australian branch opened in November 2007 with a focus on helping businesses in Perth and rural Western Australia to purchase software licenses in the most cost effective way. The decision made today extends this expertise across other aspects of an organisation's information technology landscape, including the procurement of technology products, the integration of those technologies, and the management and operation of those technologies moving forward.

Laurence Baynham, Data#3's Group General Manager said "despite challenges in the economic environment, since opening in 2007 our team in Western Australia has seen outstanding growth year on year. The demand for our software licensing expertise has outstripped our expectations and, as the market recovers, we see even greater opportunity for growth in Western Australia across other areas of our business"

With over 30 years of experience, Data#3 has grown into one of Australia's leading information technology companies, ensuring business and technology success for hundreds of organisations across the public and private sector. Those organisations rely on Data#3's strong relationships with the world's leading technology vendors, including Microsoft, Cisco, HP, and IBM.

The announcement today means that Western Australian organisations can also leverage these relationships.
