Data#3 and TrackOne Studio combine for success

September, 03, 2015; Brisbane, Australia: Data#3 and TrackOne Studio today announce that they have established a strategic alliance to bring best of breed Data Analytics solutions to the Australian Education Sector. TrackOne Studio will market its suite of Data Analytics solutions exclusively through Data#3 as a national supply, integration and services partner.

Phillip Budd, Director, TrackOne Studio, said, "Systems Integration is key to any Data Analytics solution and the necessary connections to various school systems as well as internal and external data sources can be quite complex. This is where Data#3 has a wealth of experience and capability which adds to and complements the experience of our own design team."

Bruce Crouch, General Manager – Applications Solutions, Data#3, commented, "We see our relationship with TrackOne Studio as a logical extension to the integration work we are already doing in Australian schools. Our Education customers want seamless access to data to gain insight into student and school performance and support planning and quality teaching. Our solutions enable schools to gain insights they need to enhance learning outcomes through informed change."
