Data#3 Security Practice receives two prestigious industry awards

November 23, 2017; Brisbane, Australia: Leading Australian technology provider, Data#3, is delighted to announce that it has won two security awards - Symantec Partner of the Year for endpoint and information security, and ANZ McAfee Growth Partner of the Year. The company received the awards for demonstrating superior solutions and customer success.

Launched in July 2015, and led by Richard Dornhart, the Data#3 Security Practice has gone from strength to strength.

"Cybersecurity is no longer just a concern for the IT department. It's a whole-of-business responsibility, and company boards are now firmly committed to addressing the associated challenges. From the beginning, we have focused on creating solutions that solve our customer's security challenges. These awards recognise that we are doing what we set out to do and more," commented Dornhart, National Practice Manager for Security at Data#3.

Data#3 Executive General Manager, Brad Colledge, also commented on the success, "Security has always been the foundation of every Data#3 solution, however our dedicated practice has played a pivotal role in helping customers navigate the complexities associated with hybrid environments. These awards are a credit to the hard work and dedication of the entire security team, and most importantly, our customers are realising the benefits."

The Data#3 Security Practice provides customers with integrated security offerings. Underpinned by a unique framework, the services are delivered and managed by experienced Data#3 professionals, and complemented by consulting services from Business Aspect.
