

Data#3 wins prestigious national cloud award

September 21, 2018; Location, Australia: Leading Australian technology services and solutions provider, Data#3, today announced that it has been named as the Emerging Technologies Cloud Partner of the Year at the ARN Innovation Awards in Sydney.

The company won the award for demonstrating how it provided business outcomes by delivering a valuable, cutting-edge solution that went beyond a traditional IT deployment.

Data#3 was selected ahead of some impressive nominations, including niche providers, to secure the win in front of 680 industry professionals.

Data#3 Chief Executive Officer and Managing Director, Laurence Baynham, commented, “As an experienced cloud provider, it is fantastic to receive this accolade for delivering outcomes to our customers. Cloud plays a major role in helping companies to make progress from a digital transformation perspective; however, it can be challenging to implement without the right expertise. We recently announced that our cloud business grew by 58% to $267 million in financial year 2018. This award reflects the skills and dedication provided by our people. I’d like to congratulate and recognise our great team.”

Data#3 was also named ARN Enterprise Partner of the Year for the twelfth year in a row. The award was presented to the company for demonstrating the most outstanding product and services provisioning to customers in the enterprise market in the last 12 months. Last year, Data#3 delivered innovative solutions to 4,867 enterprise customers, enabling their success. This award started in 2006, and Data#3 has been recognised as Australia’s leading enterprise partner every year since its inception.

The ARN Innovation Awards are voted on by a judging panel comprising of 170 leaders in the ICT industry.
