

Data#3 Wins Employer of Choice Gold Medal

April 24, 2019; Brisbane, Australia: Leading Australian technology services and solutions provider, Data#3, today announced that it has been named as the 2019 Employer of Choice for the Human Resources Director (HRD) Magazine.

Data#3 won the gold medal in the large category (500+ employees) with the award recognising companies that were rated by their employees across several different aspects of satisfaction.

The company finished strongly in a number of categories including; access to technology, work-life balance, and health and wellbeing. The recognition is a testament to Data#3's continued investment in its people and the prioritisation of experience and wellbeing in everything it does.

Commenting on the award win, Data#3 Group Manager of Organisational Development and Human Resources, Tash Macknish, said, "We are thrilled to be the recipient of the gold medal again in 2019 - our second gold in four years. We recently changed the way we engage with the business, creating new specialised teams for talent acquisition and organisational development. This renewed focus has clearly been felt throughout the business. To see Data#3 sitting on the leader board for the last four years has been incredible. It demonstrates that our people are feeling the value that we place on them as our most important asset."

Data#3 Chief Executive Officer and Managing Director, Laurence Baynham, commented, "We are extremely proud to take home this award. The Employer of Choice accolade is something that we consider of such high importance that it is an ongoing strategic priority. The fact that we are rated by our staff makes this recognition invaluable. Congratulations to the entire Data#3 team on this cross-industry, prestigious award. Data#3 continues to be a great place to work in an exciting and fast-changing information technology industry."
